

AFTER AN EARTHQUAKE...

HOW WILL YOU COMMUNICATE?

After a big earthquake, you could be without phone service or electricity for days or weeks. If you're injured or need supplies, where will you go?

FIND YOUR BEECN!

- Within two days of the quake, Portland intends to activate BEECNs (Basic Earthquake Emergency Communication Nodes) at 48 locations around the city.
- Each site includes volunteers with a red tent, a radio to report severe damage or injuries, a first aid kit and emergency info.
- Check the map for BEECNs close to where you live or work, and practice walking/biking there at least once a year.

GET PREPARED

- Join your Neighborhood Emergency Team (NET): www.portlandoregon.gov/NET
- Sign up for PublicAlerts to get urgent safety messages on your mobile phone: www.publicalerts.org/signup
- Create a family emergency communications plan and practice it! Guidance here: www.portlandoregon.gov/PBEM/Prepared

BEECN VOLUNTEERS WANTED!

DISCLAIMER: Please do not attempt to go to a Basic Earthquake Emergency Communication Node if you feel that doing so would put you in danger. These sites will not have supplies or provisions immediately following an earthquake or other citywide disaster. The primary role of these sites is communication and information sharing: between neighborhoods, agencies and Portland’s Emergency Coordination Center. It may take up to two days, or longer, for these sites to become operational. Locations may change over time, or be relocated after a disaster if the pre-designated site is not safe.
